The Poor Man's Chance

There is a reason why so many people go to California. And so there is a reason why

EMPIRE CHURCH COLONY

in less than three years has grown into one of the Largest and most prosperous Churches on the entire Pacific Coast.

The little town of Empire is situated in the most prosperous part of Sunny Stanislaus County, in the Modesto Irrigation District, eight miles near the foothills, and five miles from the metropolis of Stanislaus County, the City of Modesto. It lies between two deep streams, the Tuolumne and Dry Creek, which gives it a perfect drainage. Situated on the main line of the Santa Fe railroad it is connected with the main city of Stanislaus, Modesto, by an Interurban railroad. This prosperous little city was laid out only eighteen months ago, and is now a town of prosperous farmers and home builders. The town was built up and is mainly inhabited by members of the Church of Brethren. It has a postoffice, a general merchandise store, a lumber yard, a school and a prosperous church. This church, organized by the Brethren two years ago with a membership of eight, now has a membership of one hundred and seventy-five. This in itself is the best evidence of the growth and development of the town. The Church of the Brethren was dedicated on March 12, 1911.

The most important industry in the district, wherein Empire is situated, is the growing of alfalfa in connection with dairying. This industry offers the greatest returns with the greatest degree of certainty. Alfalfa is cut from four to six times a season, the fields yielding from one to two tons per acre at each cutting, the average for the season being from six to nine tons.

From thirty acres Mr. W. E. Garrison cut last season ten tons of hay per acre, six crops being grown. The hay was sold from the ranch, loose, for eight dollars a ton—eighty dollars per acre. This is not an exception. It is the general rule in and around Empire.

Having thoroughly tested this country as desirable for colonies of our people, we now propose to found a

New Church Colony

in the same part of the Great San Joaquin Valley; near the Empire church colony, mentioned above; where in the very midst of fine orchards; truck farms; and Alfalfa-Dairy Ranches; we propose by our

to sub-divide a large wheat ranch into 20-acre and 40-acre tracts. These we propose to sell to actual settlers for a small cash payment, allowing them the privilege of completing payment, by turning over half the crop of alfalfa grown on the land; or may make money payments on long time at wholesale prices, at about half what some others are selling less desirable lands. Land men will sell you land for the sake of profit alone.

Church Extension by Colonization is our motto and our business is to found new churches. WILL YOU HELP US? Write us at once for particulars. Don't delay.

Self and Sex Series

No more popular series of books has been written. Millions of copies have been sold. They have gone into all countries where Christianity and civilization have penetrated, and have been translated into many languages and dialects. The value of these books to the human race is inestimable. The subjects which they treat are ordinarily avoided, but are nevertheless of first importance. The books are warmly praised by many eminent men and women. Lives are unhappy, miserable and often wrecked because of ignorance concerning the very things made plain in these books.

There are four volumes for men and boys, written by Sylvanus Stall, D. D., and four volumes for women and girls, written by Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D., and Mrs. Mary Wood Allen, M. D. Following are the titles:

- "What a Young Girl Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Boy Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Woman Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Man Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Wife Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Husband Ought to Know."
- "What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know."
- "What a Man of 45 Ought to Know."

Finger Posts on Life's Highway

By John T. Dale.

DO you want to know how to succeed in life? Read this book. It contains 620 pages, covering more than one hundred articles, each of which is a "finger post" pointing a road to success. It is a key to true development of mind and heart, and happiness here and beyond. The author has had unusual opportunities for exercising his faculty of close observation in country and city life, and this collection of articles is the result of many years' gathering. A wise maxim, or rule of business has saved many a fortune; a word of caution has saved many a precious life, and a word of warning many a soul. Such words and maxims are found in this volume. As a book for a family library it is immensely valuable. There are chapters for all, regardless of sex, age, condition in life; calling or profession. Be sure to include this in the list of books you buy this year. Bound in cloth, Price, $1.50.

Why Should You Patronize the Brethren Publishing House in Preference to Other Publishers?

1. Because all our books, papers, Sunday-school supplies, song books, etc., are thought out, written and compiled with a view to your special benefit.
2. Because, quality considered, they are as reasonable in price as you can expect to get elsewhere.
3. Because every cent of the revenue derived from the sale of our publications, over and above the expense of running the business, is used for missionary purposes.

Elder Ephraim W. Stoner

By Chas. D. Bonsack.

It may not be well to lament too much the departed fathers of the church. Their work is done and God has called them higher. To forget them, however, would be a crime. It is their work which we take up, on which, as yet, we have bestowed no labor. It was their ideals and purposes, that make the atmosphere in which we live. It was their struggle that gives us strength, and their fighting which is our victory. Every man owes his accomplishment in the better things of life to the thrilling struggle for right, and the convictions of character, as told in the biography of Lincoln, Bunyan, Luther and a host of others. We only understand great life principles as they are translated into living men and women. Men may quibble and attack the Bible and its message; but the life of Jesus Christ and its record has no other explanation than that God condescended to live among men.

I, therefore, have sometimes felt that, as a church in the past, we have lost something in our modest fear to record the deeds of our church fathers, lest we exalt the "man" above measure. It must be admitted that most of us are incompetent for the delicate task, lacking judgment and sometimes honesty and courage, to give the right setting of a man's life before God and men; yet it seems to me that God would be pleased to have us record at least some of the things in a man's life which he has been pleased to use as a blessing to the world. Biography at least is good so far as it helps us to be purer and stronger, and to forget not the God of our fathers.

In crossing to the promised land, for fear they would forget to tell it, God told his people to take up stones from the river bottom, where he had divided the waters, so that coming generations would enquire and hear the story of their fathers' faith and their God. Perhaps we have failed to record some great things that God has done for our fathers, and as a result the rising generations are not enthused with our history, and many have turned to others, who have painted in glowing colors the records of the past and kept them for the inquiring mind of youth. This is not because the fathers in the Church of the Brethren were lacking in courage and intelligent conviction or that God failed them in their work; but because we failed to remember that we had an obligation to the coming generations in preserving for them the stories of God's goodness, and their faith in the right.

But it is no easy task to put in words the record of a man's life. The deeds done are not the whole story, nor always the most important. Back of them is the will, the motive, the struggle against environment, etc. These God knows,—we seldom, and then only in part. Because of this we so often misjudge men. Then, too, it is difficult to comprehend a life so long as Bro. Stoner's, touching so many lives and at so many places through the years. He was preaching ten years before I was born. This to me seems a long while ago. As I remember that all the years, from then till now, were filled with a more or less active service for the church, I feel, in the absence of accurate records, almost incompetent to speak. But long as these years seem to us, in helping along the cause he loved, yet to him they were brief enough, and no doubt failed to show the results he would have desired, and so shall it be with us all.

Bro. E. W. Stoner was one of a family of five, born July 26, 1833, on a farm a few miles from Union Bridge, Maryland, in the vicinity of which he lived all his life. His father, David Stoner, and his mother, whose maiden name was Esther Pfautz, had early united with the Church of the Brethren, and were noted for their piety and godliness. This meant a splendid heritage for the family and is splendidly exemplified in the two surviving members,—Elder David Stoner, of Johnsville, Md., and Sister Rebecca Longanecker, of Denton, Md. Brother Ephraim spent his younger years about the farm and the neighborhood, going to the country school near by, when not engaged in the duties about the farm. He was baptized at the age of twenty-two, with four or five others, and the following year was married to Sister Belinda Engel, one of the number baptized a year before. To this union were born ten children, but only three daughters grew to womanhood, and they, with their mother, survive their father. These early united with the church. The oldest daughter, Edith, is the wife of Eld. D. Victor Long, of Hagerstown, Md. Fannie is the wife of W. M. Lyon, pastor of the Progressive Brethren church, Washington, D. C. Emma is the wife of

Mr. Julius Traub, of Baltimore, Md. Bro. Stoner's home life was most pleasant, the atmosphere of patience and quiet, with orderliness, seemed to prevail at all times. Many shared the hospitality of their home, and the quiet friendliness of Brother and Sister Stoner will be remembered by all who had that pleasure.

Baptized at twenty-two, elected to the ministry at twenty-eight, he spent his life largely in the interest of the church. As a young man on the farm he found pleasure and profit in studying his Bible as he carried it with him to the field, and rested his horses in the plow. Indeed, as I knew him, business had little hold on his mind. He cared little for the hustle of business and its distracting cares. He took good care of his possessions, lived economically and well, but found his enjoyment in the consideration of the problems and polity of the church in which he was a constant student. This made him a leader in this line of church activity. He enjoyed the church councils, whether local or general, and was a good man to have present at such meetings. Slow to speak, quiet and deliberate; of a fatherly personality; diplomatic and experienced in the usages and practices of the church,—all combined to give him prestige and power, and his decisions were difficult successfully to oppose. He did not contend for his opinion or position, but had a quiet, cautious way of waiting, and things usually worked to his viewpoint.

As a preacher, Bro. Stoner was not noisy nor oratorical. Here, as elsewhere, he was deliberate and quiet,—a fine thinker and with more than an ordinary knowledge of the Scriptures. His preaching was largely expository. While to some, at times, his deliberate and passionless preaching was tedious, he never failed to get the interest and regard of the intelligent, for his statements were carefully thought out and tested in his own good judgment and that of others. He could not be said to possess great originality, but with good judgment and a large experience became n efficient father and leader in the community as well as the church. He had mastered a most beautiful vocabulary, and knew how to use it. This was especially noticed in his prayers. Often called unexpectedly to lead in prayer, and inspired by the occasion, he would everily lift one up to the gates of gold, a beautiful thought and language. He had splendid pastoral qualities; in the home and personally he was at his best. Friendly, he was approached by all, and all who talked with him, felt the influence of his reverent and sympathetic manner.

Like all men, he had his weaker points. Many of us wished at times he was more frank, but he was always slow and cautious to commit himself, even to those best known and trusted. This secretiveness, with his diplomacy, led his best friends, sometimes, to suspicion and wonder as to his position and sincerity. Threwd, his statements and movements were closely watched, and often criticised without mercy; but these things never ruffled him in the least. He was a personification of deliberation and patience.

In the fifty years of his ministry there were but few of the Annual Meetings that he did not attend. Interested and loyal to the councils and decisions of the church, he found pleasure in the Annual Meetings even though he did not take a large part in their deliberations. He was a member of the Standing Committee a number of times; but only half of his ministerial life was in the eldership. His disposition prevented him from being aggressive in the constructive work of the church; but he was a splendid adviser and help to those who were, and his opinion was a large factor in the advisability of procedure, in any new movement in the Eastern District of Maryland.

He was a student of conditions about him, especially in the work of the church. This kept him young, active and useful unto the end of his life. While some slight throat trouble kept him from preaching much, his judgment and interest remained fresh and keen up to the final illness. This was so much so that it was hard to realize he was getting old. When more than seventy-three years old, at the request of the congregation, he wrote a history of the Pipe Creek congregation and had it published, which preserves many interesting data and facts that would otherwise be lost and forgotten. For thirty years he conducted a weekly Bible class in the town of Union Bridge, only ceasing his personal attendance and direction of this a few months before his death.

Bro. Stoner took good care of himself, and enjoyed good health as a result, up to a few months before his death. He was confined to his bed about four months, and in this affliction the same patience was manifest until July 3, 1911, when his spirit departed from the body in which it tabernacled for nearly seventy-eight years. His body was carried to the old Pipe Creek cemetery, after services in the church near by, and there, amid the scenes where he had exhorted others for fifty years to the hope in Christ, his body was tenderly placed till the dead in Christ are called forth; believing that for quiet, cautious, patient action and constant devotion to the cause of Christ and the church which he loved, earth has had few to excel him.

THE MAN WHO IS NOT WANTED.

A lecturer, in speaking of the drinking man, uttered a great truth and at the same time indulged in a flight of real oratory when he said: "The railroads don't want him; the ocean liners don't want him; the banks don't want him; the merchants don't want him." Then referring to the advertisement of a saloonkeeper for a bartender who does not drink, said, "the saloonkeeper does not want him." Turning with his most winsome smile to the audience, he said, "Now, girls, do you want him?"

SOMETHING JUST AS GOOD

No, there isn't anything quite as good published as the Brethren Teachers' Monthly, for the purpose intended. The aim of this publication is to give to the Sunday-school teachers of the Brotherhood just the kind of helps they need, prepared in such a way as to make them easily available. The lesson helps are prepared by experts in the different departments, and the general articles are on timely subjects by able writers.

The Monthly will be of special value during the coming year, as the lessons are taken from the New Testament and contain a considerable amount of doctrinal teaching peculiar to the tenets of the Church of the Brethren.

Bro. David Emmert

By W. J. Swigart.

Human life is the most interesting and important study of the human mind. Every life is a history and a romance, were the details written out. The chief assets of the world today are the good lives of the good people who have lived, and their achievements, plus the good lives of the good people who are now living. We ought not to forget the lives and services of our citizens as soon as the tombstone is erected. The good that men do ought not to be "interred with their bones."

Near Benevola (delightful name and delightful place in which to be born), Maryland, Sept. 6, 1854, Bro. David Emmert was born. During his childhood the war raged sometimes furiously around his home, and over his father's fields and even about the house. He often told of the battles and soldiers, and especially vivid in his own mind and memory was the scene of one evening's discussion between his father and a general of the army. Aside from war scenes, his early life ran quiet as the gentle brooks by which he sported. The work and character of the man were somewhat forecast in the plays, tastes, and tendencies, thoughts and visions of the boy. While full of the sportive and fun-loving propensities that naturally belong to childhood, he was precocious, at least, in the ability of taking "serious thought" concerning life and its accompaniments.

In talking once with a close friend, they talked of their love affairs. He said he never had but one love affair, and he expected that to terminate in his marriage. As they talked further, he opened his heart further, and related how he had prayed over the matter and sought guidance from heaven in his love and courtship experience, and he felt that one's religion should be applied as seriously to those things as to other transactions of life. With many young people love affairs are hardly thought of as coming within the realm and reach of prayer.

He attended the public schools and worked on the farm,—at times amusing himself and his friends with his pencil and crayon. He attended the State Normal School at Millersville, but did not graduate there, and never formally graduated from any school,—except the school of life and experience. He served an apprenticeship as a pattern maker in the Frick Manufacturing shops at Waynesboro. There he became intimately acquainted with the late Jacob M. Zuck, founder of Juniata College. The college was started as the Brethren's Normal College by Bro. Zuck, April 17, 1876. Bro. David Emmert came to Huntingdon in September, 1877, and became a member of the faculty. He taught drawing and painting and also some of the sciences, and did some work in school as a student. He was intimately and vitally connected with the life of the institution up to the time of his death; having been student, teacher and trustee.

Bro. David Emmert was a versatile man. He could do many things, and really seemed adept at all of them. He was a student, that is, a thinker. He brought ideas into new relations, and worked out new creations. He was a teacher and loved that work. He was an artist; and, probably, of all the things to which he gave himself, the deepest, natural, intuitive promptings of his life were in the exercise of this talent. It was a sort of native, spontaneous passion with him. Probably the greatest of the many sacrifices of his life was to give up this avocation for the more pressing things of life that came to him. He spent time and money in the studio, and with the masters of the country.

Once, when he was working in the studio in Philadelphia, I visited him; and as we walked together on the streets and in the galleries, his talk was for one moment in ecstasies over the pictures and statuary, and the next on the poor in Huntingdon and Philadelphia. His heart seemed to be swinging like a pendulum between his art and the neglected children, until it finally centered with the work, and for many years pictures and brushes and landscapes were relegated to the past and to the outside, to make room for the pressing demands of other things.

He said once that the first vision or thought of nature's beauties, as associated with their reproduction by art, came to him when very young. As he sat on a coop with his sister, the young chicks and ducklings gathered at their feet to be fed. Just then the glorious beauty of a Maryland sunset enraptured his uplifted youthful eyes. What a concept for a painted picture that scene would be!

The great work of his life was in the interest of the homeless and friendless children. A concern for the helpless and suffering seemed to be born in him. Early in life his mind was exercised in their behalf. According to his own statement, the first vision of the need of attention to the neglected child came to him when yet a boy, in his early teens, as he gathered stones in the field of his father's farm. The second time he felt the manifest call to this work was one day when in the employ of the Frick Manufacturing Company, in Waynesboro. He carried something, or went on an errand from shop to office, and so plainly and distinctly did the conviction come that he paused as though halted by some one speaking to him face to face.

Some time after this he came to Huntingdon. The conviction continued with him, and he naturally became more sensitive and alert to suffering. In January and February of 1878 we had a small-pox scourge in Huntingdon. This was followed by much suffering among the poor of West Huntingdon and elsewhere, in those panicky winters of '79 and '80. Throughout all this Bro. David Emmert was alert and active, and was forever happening on those cases of want and neglect, and finding the homes where famine and fever stalked. This naturally led to the organization of the Orphans' Home in 1881 and the one in Hagerstown later.

He was a great worker. He did not merely write and speak, and send people as agents. He went himself. To the hungry he carried food, the naked he clothed, those in prison and sick he visited, and ministered unto them. No home was too lowly, no poverty and squalor too abject, no vice nor sin was so gross as to bar his entrance if he believed he could help. No hour was too late, no road too rough or muddy, no night too dark for his feet to go on errands of mercy. His own hands washed and cleansed the diseased and filthy, and his own arms carried the little ones to places of comfort and cleanliness.

Bro. David Emmert's life and career have meant something. He has done something. He has created something. Hagerstown and Huntingdon and Juniata Valley and Cumberland Valley have been affected and changed, and affected and changed for the better, because Bro. David Emmert was gifted with sensibilities that could feel, and a heart that could awake and respond to the cry of human suffering within the weak and helpless,—an intelligence that could plan, a soul that could consecrate itself to a work and a surrendered will that could go forth undaunted by opposition or misapprehension on the part of those to whom he appealed. The first primal besetting fault of his life was overwork. Any other fault of fret or acerbity resulted from this. He asked no vacation, he took no rest, he looked for no respite. He worked on ceaselessly.

Bro. David Emmert believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. I name this last because in the religion of Christ the last is always best. Bro. Emmert believed and served Christ. This says much. This tells all. All good in the world is an emanation of the Savior as the expression to man of God's love. A Christless life is a hopeless life. Christianity is the best thing in the world—the supreme gift of God to the world. Christianity is the sanest and most practical thing in the world. If any man can not or does not believe in Christ, he should only study Christ and Christianity, as set forth in the New Testament, and as it has affected the lives of its subjects. Bro. Emmert's work, throughout, was carried on in the name of Christ, and he depended for its success on the righteousness of his cause and the faithfulness of God.

Bro. Emmert was born in the Beaver Creek congregation, and reared under the instruction of the late Eld. D. F. Stouffer, but made open confession and united with the Church of the Brethren at Price's church in the old Antietam or Waynesboro congregation, then under the ministry of the late Elder Jacob F. Oller.

During his final sickness he received the sacraments of the church and enjoyed having us read from the Word and pray at his bedside. Now the volume of his life is closed. He hath written well. His labors in the flesh have ceased but his works will follow him.

When the Master shall say to him, "I was hungry and thirsty and needy, and ye gave me meat and drink and clothing; I was sick and ye visited me," he, Bro. Emmert, in response, may say, "When had I the honor to minister unto you, blessed Master?" And the Lord will say, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto these least ones, ye have done it unto me."

Huntingdon, Pa.

Charles H. Brubaker, of India.

By Nora E. Berkebile.

On a farm near Girard, Ill., there lived a loyal father, mother and their family of children.

The father, John Brubaker, was born in Virginia and his wife, Mary Neff Brubaker, came from the same State. The Lord blessed them with eleven children, and Charles was the tenth son of the family of eleven. He was born Aug. 27, 1873. He was an ordinary child, went to school and did his share of the work at home. He led the life of the average country boy.

Some one,—a childhood friend of Charles,—has said, "He could not help but be good with such a father and mother as he had. The whole family just seemed naturally good, and it seemed to be no effort to them to live a holy life." What a precious heritage for a father and mother to give their children!

Surely it is more precious than worldly treasures!

Charles spent about ten years in the country school. He was an average pupil,—absolutely loyal to parents, teacher, and his church.

Another friend said, "I never knew one unkind act in all his life and I was his seat-mate for years. No teacher ever found him associating with bad boys, and he never made the church any trouble." By nature he was of a timid, retiring disposition and extremely conscientious.

At the age of thirteen he united with the church, and was ever found where duty called. As a Sunday-school worker he was enthusiastic, and acted as secretary, teacher and superintendent as he grew older.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Illinois.

While attending a Normal, he went regularly to teach a class in a State Orphanage. He taught school in Illinois, and also in California.

Wishing to make better preparation for teaching and to secure funds to do so, he clerked for a year in an aluminum store in San Francisco. He was urged by his employer to keep on in the work, as he gave promise of becoming a very successful business man, but Charles was aiming to have a better education, and he again started to school.

While attending a convention, he felt a special call to make a greater effort to save the lost, and he planned his studies so that they would help him in this direction.

Charles H. Brubaker.

He wanted to be ready when the direct call came for him to go.

Before completing his college course in Berkeley, Cal., he had notified the General Mission Board of his willingness to go wherever the Lord would call.

In the fall of '99, while attending college in Los Angeles, the East Los Angeles church called him to the ministry.

His college work completed, a call came for him to go to India. Gladly he accepted, and on Thanksgiving Day, November, 1906, he, accompanied by Sisters Miller and Powell, set sail on board the "Cedric." As the boat sailed out of the harbor, they little thought that one day in the future their lives would be so changed. Just after Christmas they landed in Bombay. All three were sent to the Marathi field, and Charles was stationed at Poona, to learn the language where an excellent teacher could be secured. He lived with Rev. Thornton, now a missionary in Japan.

In September of the following year he was married to Sister Ella Miller, who was stationed at Vada. It was the first Christian wedding the people of our jungle village had ever seen. The native Christians decorated the native house with flowers and branches and leaves. The heathen natives flocked in to see the ceremony performed by Bro. Stover, and then there came the wedding dinner. It was all so far from the homeland and no mothers and fathers to kiss their children,—the bride and groom,—but their loving hearts beat as one and God was with them as much so as if they had been married in a more beautiful house, surrounded by parents, brothers and sisters, and childhood friends.

They went to Dahanu to take charge of the work left by Brother and Sister Ebey when they went on furlough. Here they continued their language study; here they worked for and taught the simple village people about them, establishing schools, giving medicines, and the many, many things missionaries find to do on a foreign field.

All loved him because he was so gentle with them. They never saw him angry and never found him too tired to help them, or to listen to whatever grievance they might bring to him. Happy, indeed, were they in their home by the riverside, and happier still when little Eunice Joy came to them, one August day.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Elgin, Illinois.

Several times he had malarial fever, and was some weeks in the hospital in Bombay, but we felt that when he became acclimated, he would endure the trying things as well, and perhaps better, than many others.

While studying and working, there was a constant striving to be more spiritual, more holy, and we all felt, when in his presence, that his was, indeed, a life lived near Christ.

When Bro. Berkebile's health failed and he was sent home on furlough, they went to Vada to look after the work. It was not the pleasantest thing to do, either, for they had grown to love their Kharado people well. Some they had baptized and it would have been pleasant to stay there, but when called to go, they went willingly, showing that they had the true missionary spirit, which will help one to go gladly wheresoever the call tells him to go.

They stayed there until September, 1910, and as Sister Brubaker had been quite ill, it was decided that they spend the fever season in the hills.

Bro. Brubaker attended the Gujerat conference of missionaries and spent a few days with friends. He was having some fever, which they supposed was malaria and they were hoping this would leave as soon as they went where it was cooler. They then went on to Landour Moosooril, but he was then quite ill and went to bed when they reached the house where they were to stay. Special prayer was made, and a doctor called in, but he grew worse. The hospital doctor came and pronounced it enteric fever, whereupon he was removed to the hospital.

He hoped all along to get well and others felt he would recover. Sister Brubaker and Brother and Sister Long kept praying. Soon, however, the doctors saw that he was getting weaker.

The night before he died Sister Brubaker was to see him and yet had hopes of his recovery.

A short time before he passed away, Sister Ella prayed and sang, and talked to him of heaven. Occasionally he would join in, and help to sing. He grew weaker, and seemed tired. He turned his head, and as she held his hand and prayed for strength, his spirit fled and she was left a widow in a far-away land, with a little, fatherless girl, upon the house on the hillside, waiting for mama to come. Then, too, the little unborn babe would never know a father's loving care.

All was still. Her grief was too great for words. A widow, fatherless children, a great, needy field! Missionary workers,—his colaborers on the field, could scarcely believe it to be possible. Mourning friends at home were sorely stricken. With all these we asked, "Why is it?" We could not see through the mist, but God doeth all things well.

On a green hilltop they gently laid the body away. In all the world I wonder if there is a more beautiful place to await the coming of the Lord. In sight of the perpetual snows of the higher Himalayas, and with the beautiful foothills and valley below, he rests until the resurrection day.

The missionaries, in their intercourse, would often thank God that he had spared us all so many years. In other missions, one by one, we saw the workers called, but for sixteen long years the Lord had spared us, and none had been called away.

Some had been quite near death's door, others were quite weak, but when the Death Angel came, he took one who, we least expected, would be called first. Oct. 20, 1910, when the telegram reached Bro. Stover at Panchgani, we can still see him,—with bowed head, grief stricken, sitting and thinking away into the night. He was there first,—he is like a father to the rest of us. The work in India is the burden as well as the joy of his heart. He sees how the field needs workers; he knew the possibilities in Bro. Charles and now, as he scans the telegram again, he reads, "Charles passed away today." He writes to a disabled worker at home, and pours out the burden on his heart, but after that letter is written, there still lies the tele-

YOU OUGHT TO HAVE THE BEST SUNDAY- SCHOOL SUPPLIES FOR YOUR SCHOOL

For a Brethren Sunday-school the Brethren publications are always the best. The lesson helps are prepared by practical, experienced, loyal brethren and sisters. The papers are admirably suited to the readers for whom they are intended. The song book (Kingdom Songs) is acknowledged to be a fine collection, not only for Sunday-school, but for Christian Workers and prayer meeting as well.

gram and it says, "Charles is gone."

Why did it have to be! So many there are who are not working to save souls, and yet this loyal fisher of men was taken, and the others left. God knows why. He never makes a mistake. Perhaps, in looking among the workers, he found Charles the best prepared to go. We know he was good, as his childhood friend had said. We know he was striving constantly to get closer to God, and, as one of the missionaries wrote home, "He is no longer among us, but sacred memories of his devoted, though short, life in our midst still linger as a sweet influence, wooing us to a life of deeper and intenser fellowship with our Lord. He had reached heights of conviction and experience in the spiritual life that some of us could not appreciate. The Mission is poorer and heaven richer for his transition."

Sister Ella and Baby Eunice returned in February. March 10, 1911, little Lois was born, and these two little maids will only know of the saintly father who is theirs in heaven as they are told by mother and others, but one day the glad reunion will cheer their hearts.

History of the Wolf Creek Church, Ohio.

By John Calvin Bright.

Chapter II.

The first chapter of this history appeared in the Brethren Almanac for 1898. It is also found in Holsinger's "History of the Tunkers." It gives the history of that congregation from its organization, Oct. 18, 1811, to October, 1897. In this year Eld. Jacob Garber resigned the oversight and the writer was chosen. At this time Brethren Samuel Horning and Geo. Erbaugh were in the second degree of the ministry. Our deacons were Brethren Jacob Kimmel, E. Brumbaugh, William Gilbert, Noah Eby, Henry Stoner, Daniel Kinsel and Samuel Garber. Bro. S. A. Erbaugh, a deacon, moved into the congregation in 1898, and moved out again in 1902. He returned a few years later.

Brethren Samuel Horning and Geo. Erbaugh were ordained to the eldership in 1900. Bro. J. Homer Bright was called to the ministry at the same time. Brethren John W. Fidler and S. A. Blessing, ministers in the second degree, moved into the church in 1904; also Bro. Geo. Petry, a deacon, and Bro. Calvin McNally, a minister. The latter came from Illinois, but finally joined the United Brethren. Bro. Blessing only remained a short time. Bro. Fidler was ordained to the eldership in 1907. Bro. Amsey Hay was called to the deacon's office at the same time. An election was also held for a minister at that meeting, but as the votes were very scattering and so many had no choice, the elders declared no election. In 1908 Brethren Joseph Robins and Noah Beery were called to the ministry, and Chester Cooper and Monroe Snyder were called to the office of deacon. In 1908 Eld. Jacob Garber was called home. He served on Standing Committee in 1884.

Part of the Wolf Creek territory was ceded to a new church,—Trotwood,—in 1905. A meetinghouse was purchased of the United Brethren in Brookville in 1905. We then had four houses within a distance of eight miles all in the same longitude. As there were few members near the central house, and as the Brookville house is only one and one-half miles away, sentiment began to awaken and grow, to divide the church into two parts. This was agreed to Oct. 27, 1916. The church decided to hold the central house in common, to hold communions and such other services as the cause might demand, for five years unless, by mutual consent, they saw fit to dispose of it sooner. At that time, if one of the churches would demand its division or sale, it must be done.

The northern part comprises about fifty-five square miles, and has about one hundred and seventy members, one preacher in the first degree, Joseph Robins, and five deacons. In their organization, held Nov. 2, Eld. D. M. Garver was chosen as their presiding elder. This church has a house in Brookville, a half-interest in the central house, before mentioned, and a half-interest in the Arlington house. It is known as the Brookville church.

The southern part met in council Nov. 10, 1910, and decided to be known as the Eversole church. Bro. Samuel Horning was chosen as the presiding elder. Brethren Geo. Erbaugh and John Calvin Bright, with Brethren John Bowman in the second degree, and Noah Beery in the first degree, constitute the ministry. This church also has three deacons. It has a membership of one hundred and twenty-five, all told, and a territory of forty square miles. These members have one meetinghouse and a part of the old central house.

The Wolf Creek church has been in existence ninety-nine years. The first twenty-six years they were without a meetinghouse. Fifteen elders and sixteen other ministers have served her; with a deacon corps of forty-six. Her entire membership during the century of her existence, labors and trials, numbered about four thousand. The presiding elders were: Daniel Gripe, 1811-'28; Emanuel Flory, '28-'30; Michael Landis, '30-'33; David Bowman, Sen., non-resident, '33-'36; Samuel Pfoutz, '36-'43; Christly Arnold, '43-'55. These all preached mostly in the German language. Brethren Abraham Erbaugh, '55-'72, Joel Wogomon, '72-'78, labored in both languages. Samuel Garber, '78-'81; Jacob Garber, '81-'97; John Calvin Bright, from 1897 up to the present.

Brethren and sisters of the Brookville and Eversole churches, we have naught whereof to boast, excepting what the grace of God has done for us in giving us the spirit of peace, dwelling in our midst. Let us thank God and take courage, and "run with patience the race set before us."

Marriage Shroud.

Note.—Have not our girls a right to be well married? Is it not their privilege to have happy homes and is not health one requisite to happiness? Let the young woman who reads this ponder it well, and then make up her mind that she will learn something of the habits of the man she intends to marry. Has she not as much right to expect a pure man for her husband as he has to expect a pure woman? If the young woman in this article had demanded a pure man and not one of the "popular set" she would have, undoubtedly, avoided her suffering and an early grave. Have dissolute men any more right to murder women through wedlock than any other murderer? Girls read and be careful whom you marry. An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

A refined, attractive, cultured young girl had just graduated from one of our prominent schools for young women. Special care was given to her gown, for the dress in which she was to receive her Bachelor of Arts degree was also to be her wedding gown. She graduated in the morning and married in the evening. The wedding was grand. The beautiful young bride was admired by maidens, matrons and men alike. The bridegroom was a member of the so-called "popular set" in the young bride's home town. His parents were wealthy, and he, an only son, could have had, and did have, all the advantages that money can procure.

The wedding bells rang long and loud. The newspapers were eloquent in their praise of the brilliancy of the wedding as a really notable social event. The same papers acclaimed the nobleness of the bride, the honor of the bridegroom.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Illinois.

In the midst of the wedding festivities, the bridegroom arose in all his splendor and proposed a toast to the health of the bride; whose every bone, muscle, fiber, and sinew told of health. Her health was drunk, the glasses clicked, the wedding festivities were ended.

The graduating wedding gown was placed carefully away; the bride put on her traveling suit and with her chosen mate the honeymoon began.

A few weeks elapsed and the scene changes.

There is nothing brilliant about the events here to be described, except brilliancy of rapidity. An ambulance attended by grief-stricken parents awaits the return of the wedding party. The train arrives, the husband supervises the placing of his victim into an ambulance; the new bride of a few weeks is hurried to the hospital.

The leading surgeon of the city is to perform the operation of mutilation.

It might here be added that the surgeon was not the physician of the bride's family, but the latter was present at the operation. The family doctor had brought the young bride into the world, had attended her during all of her short life and when he saw her wrecked young life on the operating table awaiting the surgeon's knife, with tears streaming down his honorable old face, he cried out, "And did I bring her into this world for this?"

The surgeon, after having opened the abdominal cavity of the bride, and after recognizing conditions which confirmed his diagnosis previously made in the consulting room, made the possibly injudicious, yet true remark: "This woman's husband is his wife's murderer."

The operation was completed—the young patient, now unsexed, was placed in her room, and all aid known to modern medicine and surgery was given her. But the infection had become general, and in twenty-four hours the new bride had succumbed to ravages of a general peritonitis. The graduating dress by way of the wedding gown had become the burial shroud.—Dr. F. A. Rupp, in his book, "Letters of a Physician to His Daughters."

Be Careful What You Say.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember those in houses glass
Should never throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do
But talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.
We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who has not?
The old as well as young;
We may, perhaps, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.
I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well:
To try my own defects to cure,
Ere I of others tell.
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.
Then let us all, when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word will do
To those we little know;
And know that yet the greatest harm
Must come to us alone.
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

The Boy's Keen Point.

A lady met a little boy with a bird's nest full of eggs in his hand, and she proceeded to lecture him for taking the nest. She said: "You are a bad little boy for taking that nest, for the bird probably feels bad at the loss of her eggs." "Oh, she don't care," said the boy, "for she's on your hat." The lady just happened to think of some pressing engagement she had at that time.

Where Lincoln Put the Whetstone.

A soldier at whose house when a boy Lincoln paused in his tramps in Illinois, and who loaned him a whetstone to sharpen his jackknife, met him during the war in Washington. Lincoln remembered the incident and spoke of the use of the whetstone.

"Ya-a-s," drawled out the old soldier.
"Whatever did you do with the whet-

ARE YOU IN TOUCH WITH THE CHURCH AND ITS INTERESTS?

If you are not, there is only one way in which you can get in touch, and that is by subscribing to the Gospel Messenger, because that is the only medium through which you can know about all the various activities of the church, and in which you can read the opinions and decisions regarding the distinctive doctrines of the church. This is important to every member. Subscription price, $1.50 per annum.

Annual Meeting for 1912.

The Annual Meeting for the Church of the Brethren is to be held at York, Pa., where the accommodations are said to be good and the railroad conveniences all that could be desired.

The Conference proper convenes on Tuesday morning, June 4, but the Standing Committee will meet at 8 A. M., Thursday, May 30. Preaching services are to begin about one week before the opening of the Conference, and continue for at least ten days. In due time the program will be arranged and published in the Gospel Messenger, and also in the Conference Booklet. Bro. J. A. Long is Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, and may be addressed at York, Pa.

Churches and Missions, with Pastors or Elders in Charge.

Below will be found a list of Brethren churches, with the pastors or elders in charge, by States, as complete as could be arranged from the data in hand. Some churches have several elders, but only one could be given. In most instances the one named is the elder in charge, whether resident or nonresident. For a number of congregations, or missions, the name of the pastor is given. For the address of any of these elders or pastors, see ministerial list elsewhere.

This Announcement i

Read every word and then reread families got a farm at Raisin payment

AM known to thousands of the Brethren all over the United States and Canada, as a land man who keeps his promises. I have won this reputation by years of straightforward business methods, and I am very proud of it. I expect always to merit the reputation that I have won.

This year I come to you with what I believe to be the best and most liberal offer that has ever been made. I represent a number of men who have purchased large tracts of fertile land in California. These men have turned this land over to me to cut up into small farms and sell on a plan that for liberality of terms has I believe never been equaled.

I know that in the older states and in the Mississippi Valley there are thousands of good men with large families who are struggling to get ahead. I know that these men would welcome a chance to buy a home if they could do so without feeling that they must strain themselves and their families to meet the usual large first payment and the inevitable interest and deferred payment days. It is with such men in mind that the latest of my famous HALF-CROP-PAYMENT PLANS has been devised.

The first land to be put on the market is near Raisin City, nine miles southwest of Fresno, Cal., a city of 35,000 people. This land is of proven fertility, and we have enough wells down, equipped with electrically driven pumps to furnish water to every acre. There is not another such proposition on the coast and every man who reads this announcement owes it to himself and his family to investigate it at once.

We are establishing at Raisin City what I believe will be the richest colony of Brethren in America. There are 50,000 fruit trees planted and almost as many vines, while the alfalfa meadows and the ever working cow are occupying thousands of acres. Write for the books that I have had published descriptive of this project.

Important to all Brethren

*tells how over 100 Brethren
Raisin City, Calif., on the half crop plan*

THE PROPOSAL

I have cut the Raisin City lands up into twenty and forty acre farms. I will sell these little farms for $150 an acre. I prefer a small payment down, but if a brother is not prepared to make a payment or the making of such a payment will in any way retard the development of the place, I will let him have the land provided that he will get onto it at once and begin development. I will take as my payment one-half of the crops raised on seven-eighths of the land. If for any reason he cannot take advantage of this offer, at once, I have a plan by which he can get a farm if he moves onto it within one year; if there is no room here to explain. If you cannot move now but feel that you would like to get a piece of this land, write me at once and I will tell you how it may be done. Before turning the place over to the purchaser I will plow the land, establish a water supply sufficient to irrigate it and leave nothing for him to do but level and seed the place. I will require that the portion of the land that is to pay the purchase price be seeded to alfalfa and that the work of cultivating, watering, cutting and stacking be done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

I want you to know more about this land. I want to tell you about the Brethren colony at Raisin City. I want you to know that already we have a $3,000 church built and paid for, I want you to understand how prosperous the members now there, are growing, and how much they like the country. I want you to write to me today, asking for our book of letters. "Documents in Evidence." They are sent from Brethren.

If you could see this land and contrast it with other similar propositions that are being offered all over California you would know that the price asked is very low and the terms unprecedented. I want you to know all about this and I say to you—Write me at once—don't hesitate. You are under no obligation to buy, but you owe it to yourself and to those that are dear to you to investigate. Just invest the two cent stamp. It will pay big dividends.
